

PRESS RELEASE

Oakville, Ontario March 1, 2019

Vancouver-based Dean Lapointe, a member of the British Columbia Real Estate Institute was selected as a judge for the prestigious FIABCI Prix d'Excellence.

The mission of this annual worldwide competition is not only creating a platform to reward outstanding building projects but to support the creation of quality built environments. Each year projects are submitted from urban and rural communities whose attributes are based on sustainability, innovation, market-oriented concepts and high level architecture.

This year the awards ceremony will take place in Moscow in May at the annual International Real Estate Federation's World Congress as a festive gala event, attended by industry leaders from the field of architecture and real estate, as well as international guests from over 60 member countries and 120 professional organizations worldwide.

The FIABCI World Prix d'Excellence Award has come a long way, now in its 28th year, having gained prestige in the property and real estate industry especially as the judging process is transparent and independent with integrity. Mr. Lapointe brings to his role a broad range of experience from nearly 40 years in the real estate industry.
